Preface

This publication comprises all of Miguel Llobet's original compositions for solo guitar published by "Union Musical Española".

The publication is a result of selfless work by a score of this forum's members. Other similar projects are actually in the works, such as the integral work for guitar from Gaspar Sanz. In order to be able to download that publication, you need to be a member of Group 040, which means you have posted 40 different messages on one of the forums.

Miguel Llobet's biography was written in French by Céline.

123guitare, Celime, Jean-François Delcamp, Jean-Michel, Kaba_k, Lebon, Pick qwick, Rguitphil and Scherzando contributed to the redaction and the documentary research.

Eales, Eden7c and Rguitphil (from a handwritten text produced by Marcelle Jones) helped with the English translation.

Lesperseides helped by Arteusian and fed.poloni were responsible for the Italian translation.

Gwini, Kerato and Nogara were responsible for the Spanish translation.

Diviajar did the Portuguese translation.

Jean-François Delcamp initiated the digital copying process of the musical scores.

Celime, Classitar, Eales, Elisabeth, Jean-François Delcamp, Jean-Michel, Kampret, La Fred, Lam, Lebon, Mandarin, Marcello, Ramsnake and Rguitphil did the digital copying in Finale software.

Bargavm, Celime, David_Norton, Douglas, Ehummel, Elcar, Elisabeth, Emilio_K, Fretknot, Jfeagin, Lemppari, Marcello, Muirtan, Oski79, Rick-In-Annapolis, Sender, Seosamh and Smwink did the proofreading before publishing.

The few deviations from the original publication are signalled in the footnotes. Harmonics are represented by diamond shaped notes.

Eales, Céline, Geoff, Jean-François Delcamp and WchymeUS coordinated member's work.

Biography

Historically, the composer-performer Miguel Llobet appeared during a transitory period that ushered in the modern classic guitar.

His native city, Barcelona, was, in his time, a venue that brought together several important artistic personalities, one of whom, Francisco Tárrega, considered Llobet his favorite pupil.

The remarkable technique and rare musicality displayed by Llobet succeeded in capturing the regard of great composers such as Manuel de Falla, Isaac Albéniz, and Enrique Granados.

He is among the first guitarists to have conquered the concert stage at the international level. Historically, he is the second to have recorded on disc.

During the same period and not far away, the luthier Antonio Torres (1817-1892) had just established standards for the modern classic guitar.

The Debuts¹

The son of a wood sculptor, Miguel Llobet was born in Barcelona on October 18, 1878.

Very early, the young Miguel showed exceptional talent for the arts, particularly music (violin and piano) and drawing ^(s1, a1).

At the age of eleven, he began his studies of the guitar with Magin Alegre. It was after a concert given by the blind guitarist Antonio Jimenez Manjón² (1866-1919) that he decided to undertake a career as a guitarist.

Magin Alegre arranged a meeting with Francisco Tárrega (1852-1909) and after an audition, Miguel Llobet entered the Municipal Conservatory of Barcelona, where he completed his studies.

Among the students at the Conservatory were to be found Pablo Casals, Emilio Pujol ^(a4), Ricardo Viñes and Gaspar Cassadó ^(s4).

The First Concerts

It has been recognized that in 1898, Miguel Llobet had created in Barcelona the musical society, "Lira Orfeo", which brought together a group of amateurs.

The music society Lira Orfeo.

The instruments used were mandolines, guitars, lutes, and archlutes.³

Guitar aficionados at this time met occasionally in unusual locales. Such is the case of the celebrated "vaqueria" (cow stable) of Léon Jarré ^(s6, a6) in Barcelona, where Tárrega, as well as Llobet, Pujol, Sainz de la Maza, and Segovia, played surrounded by artists and intellectuals, among whom were Granados⁴, Viñes, and Malats.

But Llobet's first official concert took place at the conservatory in Valencia in 1901.

The same year, he appeared at the conservatory at Seville, as well as that of Malaga where he was awarded the title of Honorary Professor.

In 1902 he appeared at the Théâtre de la Comedie, and in 1903 before the Spanish Royal Family in Madrid.

Paris (s4, s7)

Miguel Llobet gave his first concert outside of Spain in Paris in 1904, presented by his friend and compatriot, Ricardo Viñes, the celebrated pianist and interpreter of the works of Debussy.⁵

Miguel Llobet sketched by Charles Léandre. Mercure Musicale, 1906.

During this period, he associated with such Parisian composers as Paul Dukas, Claude Debussy⁶, Maurice Ravel, Isaac Albéniz⁷ and Manuel de Falla.

The concerts were given in such prestigious locales^(s12) as the Schola Cantorum, La Trompette, the Société Nationale de Musique, the Soirée de Arts, etc.

Of one of these concerts, the distinguished Frenchman, René Boire reported, "The three beautiful works composed by Fernando Sor, who has been called the 'Beethoven of the guitar,' permits the wizard who is Llobet to communicate to us a 'genuine artistic emotion'."

From 1905 to 1910, although he lived in Paris, Llobet gave concerts in several European countries and in England.

Argentina and the Grand Tours

In 1910, Juan Carlos Anido⁸, and Domingo Prat invited Llobet to live in Argentina, in Buenos Aires^(s4, s10, s16).

Argentina became, at that time, one of the principal locales for the guitar.

This republic acquired its independence from Spain in 1816 thanks to General Jose Francisco de San Martin (1778-1850) who was a guitar amateur and who happened to be a student of the Catalan Master Fernando Sor.

From 1895, Buenos Aires included among its 67,000 inhabitants the guitarists Juan Alais, Carlos Garcia Tolsa, Antonio Jiménez Manjon, José Sancho, Julio S. Sagreras, Gaspar Sagreras, Pablo Simeone (1869-1910) and Pedro Quijano (1875-1953), an editor, students, and aficionados of the guitar.

Meanwhile, Miguel Llobet regularly left his outpost in Argentina to do tours in North and Central America, in Brazil, in the Caribbean, and almost all of the major Western European cities.

Llobet, New-York, 1916 by Suydam.

On October 29, 1912, on his return from South America back to Paris, Llobet made a stop in New York for several days^(s1).

⁸ His daughter, Maria Luisa became Llobet's student in 1923.

Paul Eno, eminent professor of guitar and banjo, persuaded him to come to Philadelphia so that he might give an afternoon concert in the "Club Orphée".

I was the first exclusively solo guitar recital⁹ given in Philadelphia.

The American pianist and composer, Camille Zeckwer, who was among the invited, commented on Llobet's interpretation of Chopin's Nocturne, opus 9, no. 2, "This was the most artistic rendition of that beautiful Chopin classic I've been privileged to listen to."

In 1912 and 1913, he made a tour of France, Belgium, Germany in Munich^(s13), in Austria, and in Spain, creating enthusiasm wherever he was presented.

The Period of the War

At the declaration of war in 1914, he probably^(s10) lived with the Anido¹⁰ family in Buenos Aires, with Domingo Prat, and with Emilio Pujol.

During this period, he continued his tours, did some arranging, and took some students. It was also during this time that he made his first recording attempts on disc at Bell Labs.

In 1915 he is found to have performed in Germany, along with Andres Segovia (1893-1987) at a concert sponsored by the « Munich Guitar Society »^(a6).

In 1916 Llobet acquired his Torres guitar FE-09¹¹ ^(s9, a5).

It is possible^(s7) that Llobet gave guitar lessons to Andrés Segovia in Spain during this period.

⁹ 250 people were gathered for this concert. The program, presented impromptu, included the following:

Minuet, Sor.
Etude de concert, Coste.
Nocturne op.9 No.2, Chopin.
Variations on a thème of Mozart, Sor.
Bourree de Bach.
Andante from sonata 10, Beethoven.
Sueño, Tárrega.
Capricho Árabe, Tárrega.
Fantasía Española, M. Llobet

¹⁰ Juan Carlos Anido was Emilio Pujol's agent (and most probably Llobet's) during the period 14-18.

¹¹ All recordings from Llobet were played with his Torres FE-09^(s9, a5). History recalls that Augustin Barrios Mangore was the first guitarist to record on a gramophone (1910, 1913).

Segovia in front of Llobet playing the guitar. Unknown date, approx. 1916.

But we do not possess viable documentation proving that Segovia was a regular pupil of Miguel Llobet^(s7).

According to Emilio Pujol, Segovia took a few lessons with Llobet, and the latter may have cut off the lessons due to the rebellious nature of the student.

After the War

In 1919, Miguel Llobet lived with the Anidos in Argentina, where he continued his activities as a concert artist and teacher.

Miguel Llobet, Emilio Pujol, Juan Carlos Anido, María Luisa Anido and Domingo Prat at the Anido's in 1919.

In 1920 Llobet interpret in Paris « Hommage pour le Tombeau de Debussy », composed by Manuel de Falla, with Llobet as both inspiration and dedicatee.¹²

¹² Manuel de Falla started to study the guitar to grasp its technique. He orchestrated this piece in « Homenajes », composed in 1938/39:

I Fanfare sobre el nombre de Arbós
II A Claude Debussy (Elegía de la guitarra)
III A Paul Dukas (Spes Vitae)

He traveled across Germany in 1921 and appeared in Munich, Leipzig, Dresden, Cologne, and Stuttgart. Llobet contributed powerfully to the development of the prestige of the guitar in Germany, and was frequently invited^(s13) by the Société de Guitare de Munich.

Around 1925, Llobet recorded several solo pieces, and made a series of concert tours in duo with Maria Luisa Anido.

Toward 1929, the duo recorded arrangements by Llobet under the Odeon Parlophone label, distributed by Decca. A compilation of these historic recordings is available on CD¹³ (Timing 44:35).

After 1930, Llobet returned to Barcelona, from where he continued to concertize in, among other places, London, Berlin, Hamburg, Munich, Venice, Budapest, and Bologna.

Spanish Civil War and the End

It would seem that the civil war which took place in Barcelona in 1937, profoundly affected Llobet, and precipitated his death on February 22, 1938.

It was discovered that Miguel Llobet's remains lay in an unmarked tomb, with only the word, "Guitarrista" written on it in chalk by a good intentioned anonymous person.

In 2007, the Cercle Guitarristic de Catalunya erected an appropriate commemorative stone.

The Personality of Llobet¹⁴

Llobet was a great virtuoso who brought together rare human qualities, and an exceptional artistic talent.

He was extremely good and generous. A marvelous man.

It was said that he was the most elegant guitarist in all Spain. He was a thin man, of medium stature. He very much resembled Chopin, to the point that his little girl, seeing a bust of Chopin in a Polish village, cried out, "Oh, Papa, Papa!".

IV Pedrelliana (sobre temas de La Celestina)

¹⁴ This paragraph and the beginning of the following are excerpts of an interview^(s2) of Maria Luisa Anido by the journalist Francoise Emmanuelle Denise.

Llobet, Paris,
1905 (s11)

Llobet and his most well known student, Maria Luisa Anido.

Although Llobet had the reputation of being the most talented of Tárrega's students, he himself had a strong personality.

The Interpreter

Llobet was a great virtuoso who had an extraordinary gift for improvisation.

Segovia made the comment regarding Llobet's playing^(s16):

"Among all of Tárrega's students, the best was Llobet. He was a better musician than the others, with a superior technique".

"His tone was not as good, but his sympathetic resonance was very expressive"...

"In spite of his profound admiration for Tárrega, his teacher, Llobet's aesthetic conception was not the same in several respects: his view of things, a different age, and environment. Even though Tárrega, lover of the purity and homogeneous sound of the classic guitar would have wanted to unify the six strings of the instrument, Llobet, drawn to the diversity of timbres of the orchestra, would transform each string into a separate guitar."

Llobet differed from Tárrega on another important point: he played with the fingernails.

The Composer

According to Maria Luisa Anido^(s2), "he was very lazy, and did not take the trouble to notate all the ideas that came to him. But he composed easily, and transcribed some marvelous scores."

The compositions of Llobet (over 25 works and arrangements) are different from those of his contemporaries by their more daring harmonies, influenced by the French musicians with whom he consorted in Paris.

Manuscript of the arrangement of a Robert Schumann's piece. (Album pour la Jeunesse, Opus 68 n°16)

The inspiration for the thirteen Catalan Folk Songs¹⁵, all lovely melodic and harmonic compositions, varies from the simplicity of La Filla del Marxant or of La Pastoreta to the great complexity of El Mestre.

Besides these arrangements, the compositions of Llobet exhibit a taste for chromaticism as well as other means of creating harmonic attraction: broken cadences, harmonies filled with augmented fifths, sixths, and ninths, avoidance of root position, and a quasi-impressionistic harmonic vagueness.

Never gratuitous, these techniques are used in service of the great lyric expressivity to which the guitar lends itself so well, but are predicated under the condition that the interpreter has the ability to master the technical difficulties, particularly those in the left hand.

The legacy of Llobet consists of approximately seventy-five works, including his transcriptions.

The Teacher

As a teacher^(s2), Llobet had a stunning facility for inventing studies adapted to the difficulties each student encountered in executing glides, scales, and arpeggios.

He taught a considerable number of extraordinary contemporary guitarists, including Maria Luisa Anido, José Rey de la Torre from Cuba, and Domingo Prat.^(s10)

Miguel LLOBET (1878-1938)

ESTUDIO

en MI mayor (1899)

Révision pour guitare de Anthony Campanella

Allegro moderato

The musical score is written for guitar in E major (three sharps) and 2/4 time. It begins with a tempo marking of 'Allegro moderato'. The score is divided into three systems of staves, each starting with a measure number (8, 4, and 11 respectively). The notation includes various guitar-specific techniques: arpeggios (marked 'ar'), triplets (circled numbers), slurs (arcs over notes), and dynamic markings (p for piano, f for forte). The first system (measures 8-11) features a series of arpeggiated chords and triplets. The second system (measures 12-15) continues with similar patterns, including a section marked 'ar7' and a crescendo. The third system (measures 16-19) includes a section marked 'ritar. molto' (ritardando molto) and ends with a final chord marked 'CIV'.

The first system of the musical score for 'The Little Shepherd' is shown. It begins with a treble clef and a key signature of three sharps (F#, C#, G#). The tempo is marked 'Allegretto' and the time signature is 3/4. The score starts with a measure of whole rest, followed by a series of eighth and sixteenth notes. Dynamics include p (piano), cresc. (crescendo), f (forte), and dim. (diminuendo). Fingerings are indicated by numbers 1-5 in circles. A first ending bracket labeled '1.' spans the final measures of the system, which end with a repeat sign. The system concludes with a double bar line.

PRELUDIO EN RE MAYOR

Pequeño recuerdo a la precoz guitarrista Maria Luisa Anido
(Barcelona, 7 de septiembre de 1916)

Révision pour guitare de Céline

The musical score is written for guitar in treble clef, key of D major (two sharps), and 2/4 time. It consists of four systems of music, each starting with a measure number (1, 3, 5, 7) and a guitar-specific instruction '8' in a circle. The score includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, and fingerings. Key features include:

- System 1: Starts with a measure number '1'. It features a 'CV' (Coda) section with a sixteenth-note run. A 'mano iz. sola' (left hand solo) section follows, marked with a dashed line. The system ends with a 'p' (piano) dynamic marking and a sixteenth-note run.
- System 2: Starts with a measure number '3'. It continues the 'mano iz. sola' section with a sixteenth-note run. The system ends with a sixteenth-note run.
- System 3: Starts with a measure number '5'. It features a 'CVI' (Coda) section with a sixteenth-note run. The system ends with a sixteenth-note run.
- System 4: Starts with a measure number '7'. It features a 'CVII' (Coda) section with a sixteenth-note run. The system ends with a sixteenth-note run.

The score is a revision for guitar by Céline, and it includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, and fingerings. The key signature is D major (two sharps) and the time signature is 2/4. The score is written for guitar in treble clef. The piece is a prelude, and it is dedicated to the young guitarist Maria Luisa Anido. The score is a revision for guitar by Céline.
